Private contractor for Waveland garbage pickup considered

BY AMY PICKICH

Whether or not the City of Waveland will continue to pick up its own garbage or contract the job was the topic at board of aldermen workshop Wednesday.

The matter of the two-year contract, renegotiable after the two years, will be voted on during Wednesday's recessed board meeting.

Mayor Stella Frilot has proposed contracting the job to a private company at a savings of some $140,000 annually to the city.

By awarding the job to a private contractor, the mayor said the city would save about half of the $280,000 a year it costs to provide garbage pickup to residents.

The mayor told the aldermen that the low bidder, Boudin's, has agreed to hire city garbage workers. She also said that city workers who don't want to take the job can remain employed by the city.

She said Boudin's Waste and Recycling, a local company for some 30 years, is also interested in purchasing the city's trucks.

Alderman Curtis Colson said, according to the mayor's figures, this could help the city move into a positive financial situation.

The way Colson sees it, the city would save about $410,000 over the next two years, a savings of $140,000 a year, plus additional money for the purchase of trucks.

Law enforcement leaders to discuss impact of gaming

The three top law enforcement officials from Hancock County will be featured speakers at the Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Association's (T&G) next monthly meeting, 8 a.m., Thursday, Jan. 20 at the Waveland Resort Inn.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, Bay St. Louis Police Chief Frank McNeil and Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell will each present their views on how the legalization of dockside gaming has impacted their respective areas of jurisdiction.

Each official will discuss the changes taking place within their communities, both positive and negative, and what they foresee in the future.

Each speaker will make a ten-minute presentation, followed by a question-and-answer session from the audience.

T&G monthly meetings are open to the public, and anyone interested in learning more about the impact of the dockside gaming industry on our communities is encouraged to attend.

Supervisors okay Galaxy Casino plans

BY AMY PICKICH

Hancock supervisors voted Thursday to approve parking plans submitted by Galaxy Casino, but took no action on a request to abandon all public streets on the property.

The action came despite warnings by county engineer Lawrence Seal, who expressed concern about the major traffic problems associated with Galaxy's plan to put perpendicular parking along some 1,850 feet of the seawall at the proposed Lakeshore site.

The board passed a resolution stating there was no objection to changing the designation of the area from a general use district to a special use district.

The board also approved Galaxy's requests to:

- use county right-of-ways for all needed utilities;
- remove existing railing and install new railing or solid wall along the entire frontage of the project area;
- connect the proposed pier, roadway and other improvements to the seawall and South Beach Boulevard and to extend such into the Mississippi Sound;
- create a new channel as needed to serve the proposed casino, as approved by regulatory agencies;

- upgrade and possibly extend the seawall outward if needed to create fishing, seating, observation and sidewalk areas;

- to temporarily divert traffic until construction is completed;

- be granted air rights for the overpass across Beach Boulevard and out into the Mississippi Sound until it connects with the new casino;

- have a caution light and signs installed at the site by the county.

The $70 million development's preliminary plans included some 800 parking spaces, a 6-7-story hotel with some 300 rooms and a walkway over Beach Boulevard connecting the casino and buildings.

MANESS PROPERTY

The board took no action on a letter presented by Jim Maness signed by two main objectors in the Gulfview property dispute, rescinding their objections to the abandonment of Walker Avenue.

The letter was made part of the board's minutes until the board could get a visual look at the property in question to abandon as they agreed to do at

Touch your future

Local employment office gets automated computer

The Hancock County Mississippi Employment office on Longfellow Road in Bay St. Louis was one of 20 locations chosen to receive the state Employment Security Commission's popular touch-screen computers called ALEX, Automated Labor Exchange.

Last April the free standing kiosk units were placed in 26 offices in the state. Larger offices received a second machine this year, but this is the first such machine for Hancock County.

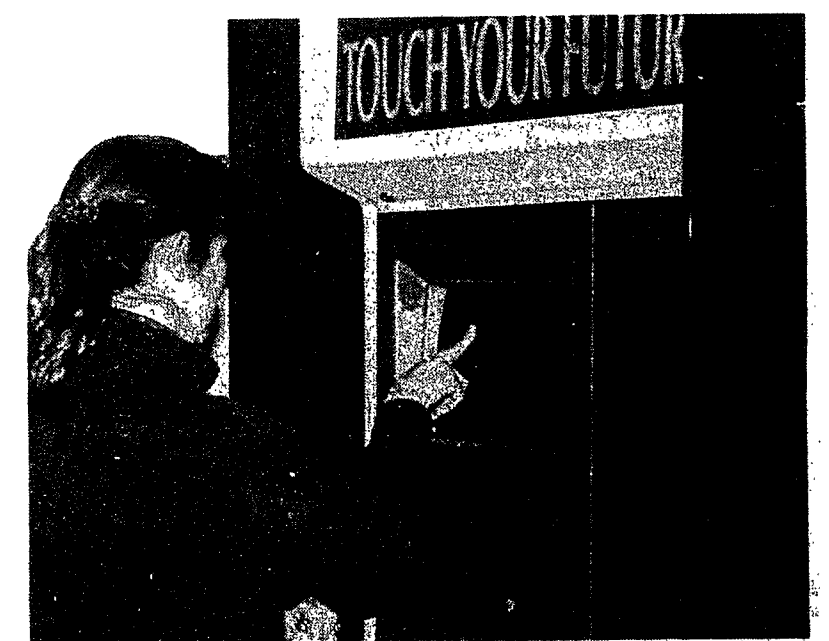

ALEX kiosks look and operate much like automated teller machines at banks. They provide more information in a far more user-friendly manner than the microfiche viewers which have been the only means of self-directed job search available.

"You simply touch labels on the screen and follow directions to get information on as many as 20,000 job openings nationwide," said Jim Bunch, director of the Employment Service for

"You can also request jobs by state or region. Job descriptions are updated daily, listing education and experience requirements, location and salary. If you find a job that interests you, you can request a printed summary to take to an interviewer for help in applying."

Peter Platz, district manager for Coast Electric, said MPCo crews were performing regular maintenance work on a line coming into the substation.

"A defective wire broke causing a fault on the line," Platz said. "There was no physical damage to our substation but the incident caused extensive damage to the conductors and connectors on MPCo's transmission line," he added.

their Jan. 3 meeting.

Maness said a contract for the sale of his property off of South Beach Boulevard in the Gulfview subdivision is being held up pending county abandonment of the water portion of Walker Avenue, which cuts through it.

Gulfview property owners objected to the county's abandonment in the subdivision because the action would leave the owners deadlocked on their property. They also contended that Galaxy is only "speculating" to build the casino.

JAIL FACILITY

The board approved an increase of $1,063 to original expenditure of renovations at the Hancock County Jail Facility for the housing of juveniles as recommended by Sheriff Ronnie Peterson.

Peterson said the county would come out cheaper in the end by the change in plans to encompass two cells instead of three, and to install a sprinkler system and security lighting. The federally mandated renovations to house the juveniles at the jail should be complete by March, according to architect Fred Wagner, who is working on the project.

AMBULANCE SERVICES

The board rescinded a motion to accept $50 for a license from J & R Ambulance Service, as the application was not in order, according to board attorney Gerald Gex.

J & R spokesman Catherine Williams said the company would reapply for license. The company will offer transportation of invalids and services other than 911 emergency calls.

Currently Mobile Medic has exclusive emergency call rights in the county.

Williams said the company's future goal is to bid for contract services in Hancock County, offering an alternative to Mobile Medic. She added they want to be to operate as a free enterprise and bid for emergency service contract in the county.

Williams said the company is sanctioned and licensed in the state and operates on an emergency level in Biloxi.

SEALS APPOINTED

In other matters the board appointed Kenneth Seals of Leetown to District 2 seat on the Hancock County Election Commission.

Seals, 60, is a 24-year Leetown resident who will fill the unexpired term of Keith Mitchell, who recently resigned.

The board approved all Hancock County Port and Harbor items, including the appointment of the new executive director, Hal W. Walters. Walters will take office February 1 at a $50,000 yearly salary.

The board also agreed to readvertise for bids for the renovation and modification of boat launching facilities at Bayou Talla, Pearlinton and Cedar Point. No bids were received prior to the 10 a.m. opening date on Thursday.

The declared January 17 a holiday in observance of the birthday of Martin Luther King and recessed until January 27.

ase of new trucks, which is also a possibility over that time.

"It would be hard for us not to look at this strongly," said Colson. "... especially with this kind of savings to taxpayers."

Colson added the amount of service days will not decrease, however the city would have the option for a cost reduction if collection is reduced. He said that a private contractor may also eliminate pickup problems during holidays.

Alderman Stan Weidman said he has several areas of concern about the city allowing a private contractor to pick up the city's garbage, including the mayor's $280,000 figure, as the city's cost to perform the task itself.

"The mayor is overinflating the cost to allow a private contractor to pick it up," Weidman said.

Weidman said he would consider the proposal if the city should keep the garbage trucks in the event that the two-year agreement with the contractor doesn't work out.

He agrees there are problems with the current service, but are due to "poor management," especially during holidays.

Weidman said the city can still provide a good service, and more importantly have control over the service, as private firms are out to make a profit.

Bay school district ends consortium with Hancock

BY AMY PICKICH

During a closed session Monday, the Bay-Waveland School Board agreed to give notice to the Hancock County School District that they will do away with a special education consortium between the two schools, according to Superintendent Paul Tisdale.

Tisdale said the consortium, which has served the special education department between the two districts for several years now, has been a "gentleman's agreement."

The two districts have split the costs of salaries for those who perform services to both.

Tisdale said the intent of the Bay-Waveland District is to retain consortium director Sherry Ponder as manager. He said this will better serve students and make the program run more efficiently.

On Jan. 3 the Hancock County School District asked Ponder to give them a report on the pros and cons of the agreement with the Bay-Waveland District as well as a definition of services.

NAACP meeting to be rescheduled

The Hancock County Chapter of the NAACP will cancel its regular scheduled meeting Monday in observance of Martin Luther King's birthday.

Geraldine Lang, NAACP president said the meeting will be rescheduled for Friday, January 21, 7 p.m.

The meeting is to be held at Lang's residence, 550 State St., Bay St. Louis.

Finalizing of the organization's Supper Theater and Mother of the Year program will be discussed.

Tickets are now available for the Supper Theatre and also advertisements to be placed in the booklet, for further information, call 467-9586.

At the meeting Ponder told them keeping the consortium was to the advantage of Hancock, as both districts pay 50 percent of the cost, but Hancock receives 62 percent of the services.

SUPERINTENDENT'S CONTRACT

Tisdale's contract renewal as superintendent, subject to renewal in July, was also brought up at Monday's meeting. Tisdale said he will accept the district's three-year contract with an option for a fourth year.

Tisdale, a native of Biloxi, has served as superintendent for the past two years.

"We're doing a lot of good things. There are a lot of positive things happening in the district," said Tisdale. "I'm very pleased with the vote of confidence and support from the board."

ON PATROL

NARCOTICS ARRESTS

Lloyd Bullard, 21, of Long Beach was arrested in Bay St. Louis Dec. 31, and charged with possession and intent to sell narcotics, possession of Schedule 3, or prescription drugs, and resisting arrest, according to Hancock County Narcotics Task Force director David Stepro.

Stepro said at the time of the arrest, Bullard had seven crack cocaine rocks and several narcotics pills.

Bullard is being held without bond as he is out on bond for a murder charge in Harrison County, according to Stepro.

Bullard, along with two 17-year-old Long Beach males were indicted in September 1992 for the murder of 21-year-old Reginald Jones. Bullard is awaiting a February 7 trial.

Detective Terry Eley, who is in charge of the investigation, said Ricky Whavers, 22, and Gregory P. Harvey, 33, both of Bay St. Louis, were also arrested with Bullard on the same charges and released under $5,000 bonds.

Eley is being assisted with the investigation by detective Tom Burleson of the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Featured speakers at the Hancock County Tourism & Gaming Association Thursday morning will be the local law enforcement officials.

The location for the meeting is the Waveland Resort Inn at 8 a.m.

The trio, Hancock Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, Bay Police Chief Frank McNeil and Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell will be the speakers.

They will present views on how the legalization of dockside gaming has impacted their respective areas of jurisdiction.

Peterson, McNeil and Varnell will also discuss the changes they foresee in the future.

The Tourism & Gaming meeting is open to the public. The public is invited and urged to attend, said Jim Henrie, spokesman.

You may want to mark your calendar if you want to learn more about the impact of dockside gaming in Hancock County.

There will also be a question-and-answer period. I hope to see you at the meeting Thursday.

It is good to see the Bay St. Louis city fathers are seeking assistance with the development of a comprehensive zoning plan.

The city has been working on and off for many years on zoning.

It is necessary to have a zoning plan adopted in order for our community to grow.

The addition of gaming to our area has made many changes, and more changes are to come in the future.

We do need orderly growth, and a comprehensive zoning plan is a must.

Those who serve as king and queen in the Krewe of Kids annual Mardi Gras parade in the Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis are selected by a draw.

The annual parade is Saturday, February 5 at 1 p.m., and a drawing is held to select royalty for the popular kids parade.

Children aged 5 to 11 are eligible, and the deadline to send a name in is Monday, Jan. 24.

Send name, age and phone number to Krewe of Kids, 1005 Dunbar Ave., Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

Best of luck to each entry.

EVEN WITH AN AIR BAG, YOU'RE NOT COMPLETELY COVERED.

Sure air bags work great in front-end collisions, but only a safety belt can protect you from side and rear-end collisions. So buckle up. And you'll cover all the angles.

REPORT FROM THE SENATE

Pending matters

Money will likely be one of the most controversial topics facing the Mississippi Legislature each year, but lawmakers are facing a new dilemma in 1994. The state's revenues have substantially increased and Mississippi has a budget surplus.

The Mississippi gaming industry has provided a significant impact on the state economy and tax revenues since the 1993 fiscal year. Income generated by the industry is estimated to have been $300 million in 1993 and is estimated to be $650 million for 1994.

Yet competition in the gaming industry is expected to escalate due to the legalizing of gaming in Louisiana with possibly other states to follow in the future. Mississippi's tax revenue growth could increase at a moderate rate, reach a high point and begin leveling off in the coming years.

We were presented with several estimates and recommendations about allocating state funds throughout the week. Much debate was heard, and opinions differ greatly about how to prioritize the needs of the state. A five-year revenue projection is being developed to determine what future revenues will be before making spending decisions now that could create future budget problems.

Over 650 general bills and constitutional amendments have been submitted prior to the Monday, Jan. 17 deadline for introduction of that specific category of legislation.

Much of the Senate week was spent in committee meetings. Each year legislators are faced with many diverse issues that must be discussed at the committee level. Senators hold positions on multiple committees which makes each assignment vitally important but considerably time consuming. Several bills have been reported out of committee including a revision of the due date for insurance premium tax payments and the expansion of business eligible for income tax credits for employee training.

Some topics addressed in bills introduced this week include: authorize a sentence of life imprisonment without eligibility for parole in capital murder cases; establish county bridge construction revolving fund; require referendum on tax and bond bills; enact open primary law, abolish partisan primaries; no one under 21 and no child care facilities in any gaming establishment is a bill I introduced; child charged with drive-by shooting tried as an adult; establish Mississippi Teacher Center; and allow feeding of deer.

Committee meetings will continue to dominate the schedule as we work to bring bills out of committee for probable floor action.

During the 1994 session I can be reached at P. O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215 or by calling 359-3232. Your questions and comments are always welcome.

State Senator Bill Johnson

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

School prayer, hate crime issues surface

The emotional issues of school prayer and crime moved to the forefront in the House of Representatives in the past week with passage of bills involving "hate" crimes, sentencing in capital murder cases, and a measure seeking to more clearly define students' rights in regard to school prayer.

Meantime, committees continued work on a fast-growing stack of bills in anticipation of the first big deadline of the 90-day session.

The final day for introduction of general bills and constitutional amendments is Monday, Jan. 17. The cutoff did not include revenues, appropriation bills, or local and private legislation.

The House gave overwhelming approval to a bill to provide that voluntary student-initiated prayers shall be allowed on public school property during compulsory or non-compulsory student assemblies, sporting events and other school-related functions.

The measure is restricted to non-sectarian prayers and prayers that are not intended to cause a person to convert to another's faith. It also provides it shall be lawful for any teacher or school administrator in public schools to permit voluntary participation by students in prayer, but not to prescribe the form or content of the prayer.

Passage of the bill follows a controversy over the reading of a student prayer over a public address system at Jackson's Wingfield High School, but the request for drafting of the measure had been turned in to the House staff last fall long before the Wingfield controversy arose.

Sponsors said the bill, which still faces Senate action, is patterned after an Alabama law adopted last year, and spells out that exercising the rights of prayer on public property should not be construed as promoting any religion or religious belief.

Anyone convicted of a crime motivated by racial or religious prejudice could face a much stiffer penalty under another bill winning House approval in the second week of the session.

The measure, recommended by the Judiciary "B" Committee, is a modified version of a "hate crimes" bill vetoed by the Governor following adjournment of the 1993 session.

An unsuccessful attempt to override the veto was made in the Senate son after the start of the present session. A similar bill also was vetoed in 1992. The latest bill, which still faces

Senate action, was among the first to reach the House for floor action this year.

Sponsors say the bill was revised in an effort to overcome certain objections expressed by the Governor to the earlier measures. It applies to either felony or misdemeanor cases in which racial, ethnic or religious prejudice was a motivating factor.

Following a conviction, a separate hearing would be held for the jury to determine if the crime was motivated by prejudice.

If the jury decides the crime does, in fact, come under the proposed new law, then the jury would be empowered to order a penalty of up to twice the punishment otherwise allowed for the crime.

One of the Governor's objections to the 1993 bill was that the judge, rather than a jury, would have determined the issue of prejudice. Backers maintain the proposed new law would send a strong signal to would-be violators that Mississippi will not tolerate hate crimes.

Other legislators have questioned the need for the bill, contending all crimes should be regarded as hate crimes.

The House also gave speedy approval to a bill to give the jury a third sentencing option in a capital murder case, providing for the defendant to be sent to prison for a life term without parole. At present, in cases involving a capital offense the jury can sentence the defendant to death or life imprisonment in which case he would be eligible for parole in 10 years.

The House-passed bill would require anyone sentenced to life imprisonment for a capital crime to serve at least 20 years before being eligible for parole. Or, the jury still could impose the death penalty or exercise its new option of life with no parole eligibility.

Other bills gaining House passage would broaden the pool from which people may be summoned for jury duty to include anyone over age 21 who has a valid Mississippi driver's license, rather than being restricted to only registered voters.

I am interested in your views on any legislative matters. Please feel free to write to me at the House of Representatives, P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215-1018, or call me at 359-3326 in Jackson or 467-6515 in Bay St. Louis.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

Mississippi Economic Council calls for less government

The Mississippi Economic Council has long been concerned that government has grown too big and is long overdue for substantial reductions. And an MEC poll shows that the voters of Mississippi agree.

Over 58 percent of the state's registered voters polled say they support the reduction of the size of the Legislature; and once they realize Mississippi currently has one of the largest legislatures in the country, the number of voters supporting reduction goes even higher.

It's simple — Mississippians want less government and more efficiency.

Yet during the last nine years, state General Fund expenditures for legislative purposes have increased by 95 percent. That's not a 95 percent increase in money spent to hire more police to fight crime in the streets. It isn't money used to buy more books to educate children in the schools. It's an extra tab of $7.3 million per year just for the Legislature to conduct its daily business making law.

But the Legislature isn't the only government sector that is too large. Each year, rather than shrinking in size, most government agencies are still growing. During the last nine years Mississippi has added another 13,000 full- and part-time employees to the state payroll which was already too large.

Figures like these are the reason MEC is supporting the initiative for reduction of the Legislature. Government is too big for its own good, and that means it's too big for the good of the taxpayers of Mississippi.

Down with the old

Casino Magic began dismantling the large "tent" arena which served as the site of boxing matches adjacent to the casino. Spokesman Len James Giacone said a slightly smaller tent will be erected at another site in the near future. The next fight will be March 20. Construction on the casino's proposed hotel should begin in the next month, said Giacone.

McDonald to continue as port and harbor president

BY AMY PICKICH

Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission president David N. McDonald was re-elected for the 1994 term at Monday's meeting of the commission.

"Every bit of energy and ability will always be directed to the betterment and accomplishments of this commission," McDonald said. "I appreciate your vote of confidence."

Other commissioners elected were Oliver "Bud" Frierson, vice-president; Omer DeBever, secretary; and Louis Brown, treasurer.

The commission approved the sale of three acres land at $18,000 an acre to Gulf Coast Fabrication. Originally, the 400' site was all considered to be on Lot 43. However, 100-feet of the land is on Lot 49.

The commission also authorized the payment of $250 to land appraiser Ames Kergosien for appraisal of the parcel.

Ray Eaton of Ray Eaton Engineers, representing Galaxy Casino, Inc., asked the commission if they had any land for dredged material once construction is underway. He said the group already had a site, but was looking for a back-up site.

Engineer Carlos Cordon and McDonald said there were no sites at present for dredged material.

AIRPORT COMMITTEE

The airport committee and Stennis International Airport operations manager David Reuscher recommended the commission institute fee schedule changes at the airport to offset FAA high priority projects and maintenance expenditures.

The commission approved an increase in a weight tariff on tonnage from 49 cents to 65 cents per thousand pounds effective immediately on non-signatory carriers and February 15 for signatory carriers.

Also approved were FAA allowable charges on ticketed customers to include a $3 tariff and a $2.25 embarkation-debarkation fee, effective February 15, to give ticketers a chance to make adjustments.

The commission approved the purchase of three pieces of firefighting equipment needed at the airport from the Diamondhead Fire Department for $4,000.

A bid of $28,969 for construction of access roadways at Port Bienville was awarded to McCoy Construction Co.

The advertisement for bids on individual surplus items and a maintenance contract for Port Bienville Railroad were approved.

All claims dockets were approved.

Tips On Writing EFFECTIVE Classified Ads

STICK TO THE FACTS

Prospective buyers need to know details, like the condition of the item for sale, the size, brand name, color and any other relevant information that would help them make a decision.

BE HONEST

Avoid from being unethical, exaggerating or misinforming potential buyers won't help you make a sale, and may only serve to lose a prospective buyers' trust. Even if they come to look at what you have to sell, they'll be less likely to buy the item or trust you once they see they've been misled.

SPELL IT OUT

Abbreviations are not easily understood by many people and may even confuse a reader. It only takes them a second to pass over an ad because it doesn't seem clear, why let it be yours because you abbreviated a description?

THE BOTTOM LINE

State the price. You'll save yourself the hassle of having to answer calls from prospects who, upon learning the price, are not really interested. Price is the first thing they'll look for when reading your ad, and when prospects know the price, you'll know you have a serious buyer on the line.

BE THERE

Let the best hours to call and make sure you're at home. If you don't list a specific time, you could be flooded with calls any time of the day or night. And when you're not at home to take calls, most likely, they won't call back.

ASK US

If you aren't sure how to word your ad or what features to include, why not ask us? Our professionals on staff know how to create an effective ad that sells, they're always willing to help, and there's no charge!

Cut winter cleaning bills

By Janet K. Lukens
Area Consumer Money
Management Specialist

My dry cleaning bill certainly reflects the extra layers of a winter wardrobe. Sweaters, coats, more suits and wools have increased clothing costs. In looking at ways to keep the dry cleaning budget reasonable, I came across a list of recommendations and warnings. Both should be taken into consideration for lowering your bill.

The most common cost cutting recommendation is to avoid buying "dry clean only" clothing. However, this has become increasingly difficult as manufacturers choose the most cautious cleaning method to list on the label.

Virtually all suits and most dresses will recommend dry cleaning. FTC allows the manufacturer to list only one appropriate cleaning method and most garment producers do not add alternatives.

Many consumers report success with using alternate cleaning methods on dry clean clothing.

However, the International Fabricare Institute's recommendation is to follow the manufacturer's label unless you are willing to risk ruining the garment.

I usually weigh the value and age of the garment against the cost of dry cleaning before I experiment.

The following list gives some additional tips on cutting dry cleaning costs:

—If attempting to launder dry clean items, try experimenting with a piece of the fabric (from hem or seam) first. Use soaps designed for hand washables and wash in cold water on a gentle cycle.

Some consumers launder clothing then pay for pressing only. This can save up to 2/3 the price of full service dry cleaning.

—Spray men's ties with fabric protector. Spots wipe off with a damp cloth.

—Try a discount dry cleaner which may even charge by the pound. Currently, I know of no "budget" dry cleaner on the Mississippi coast.

Should you try one, be aware of differences in quality of cleaning. The International Fabricare Institute points out that discounters offer little finishing or stain removal.

—Even without the availability of a discount service, there is a wide range in prices worth investigating. Telephone shop for dry cleaning prices and compare individual versus suit cleaning prices. Sometimes it is cheaper to have a blazer and skirt cleaned than a suit.

—Limit visits to the cleaners with expensive suede items by using a suede bar and brush to keep suede fabrics looking good.

—Some cleaners will pay small amounts for recycled wire coat hangers. You will be helping the environment too.

—Clothes worn next to the skin will need the most dry cleaning. My jackets which are worn buttoned without a shirt underneath must be cleaned more frequently than those worn with a shirt.

Consider cleaning when buying clothes and look for ways to layer laundry items under dry clean clothing. Wear underarm shields to protect clothing from perspiration.

—Identify stains when leaving clothes to be cleaned. Different stains require different cleaning solutions. Beware of using various household solvents not designed for clothing.

Solvent residues make clothes more flammable and leave unhealthy fumes in clothing.

Area transportation study underway

Representatives of the Gulf Regional Planning Commission (GRPC) will be distributing survey questionnaires at 10 roadside locations in Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties this month.

The survey effort is being undertaken in connection with the Mississippi Gulf Coast Area Transportation Study Update which will produce a new regional transportation plan for the three-county area.

GRPC executive director Ned Boudreaux said survey procedures have been designed to minimize the delay experienced by motorists approaching locations at which the questionnaires will be handed out.

Drivers will be required to slow down as they near the survey stations, so that personnel will be able to hand them the questionnaire safely.

However, no one will be asked to answer any questions at the roadside locations. Instead motorists will be given a postage-paid reply-mail card which can be filled out in a minute or two and then simply dropped in any mailbox.

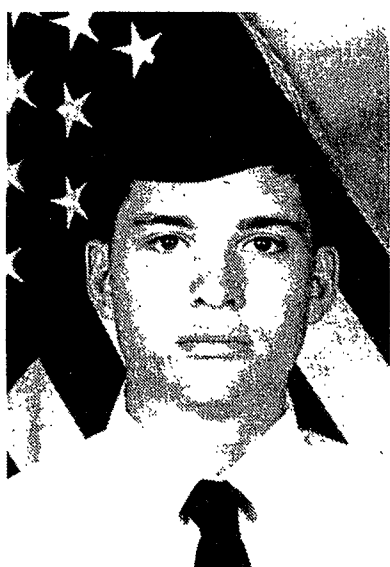

The study effort, which is being funded in part with grants from the Mississippi Department of Transportation and the Federal Highway Administration, has been undertaken by GRPC in consultation with Barr, Dunlop and Associates and Transportation Support Group of Tallahassee, Fla.

According to Bob Dunlop, project director for the consultant team, a number of public hearings will be held during the course of the study effort. These meetings will be held in order to inform the public about the progress of the study effort and to afford opportunities for individuals living, working or doing business in the area to express their views regarding the transportation needs of the region.

As the designated metropolitan planning organization for the Biloxi-Gulfport and Pascagoula-Moss Point urbanized areas, Gulf Regional Planning Commission is responsible for coordinating transportation planning activities on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Ward is the son of Edward S. and Ida M. Ward of Diamondhead.

SEAMAN PILLAULT

Navy Seaman Mark J. Pillault, son of Emmett J. Pillault of Bay St. Louis, recently completed basic training at Recruit Training Command, Orlando, Fla.

During the cycle, recruits are taught general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 occupational fields.

Studies include seamanship, close-order drill, naval history and first aid.

PIC announces changes in job training programs

The Gulf Coast Private Industry Council, which has provided no-cost job training for disadvantaged and disabled youths for 10 years, is changing its location and job training programs for the Gulf Coast community.

PIC is now located at 330 Courthouse Road in Gulfport.

Classes in electronics, office systems, technology, medical and dental assistance, auto mechanics, computers and many more courses are taught at Gulf Coast and Pearl River Community Colleges, vocational schools and private training facilities.

In an effort to meet the growing demand for meaningful job training from the five-county area, PIC is developing several original programs. Laid-off workers, the disabled, single parents, high school dropouts, ex-offenders, senior citizens and welfare recipients can benefit from training developed to meet their special needs.

PIC's on-the-job training program lets participants earn a full salary while they learn job skills. Local businesses benefit from the program by saving time and money when hiring new employees through PIC. PIC pays the cost of tuition and a percentage of the trainee's salary during the training period.

Gulf Coast Business Services Corporation administers the funds and operates the training programs of the Private Industry Council.

Government seminar slated

A seminar titled "Responding to Government Solicitations" will be Wednesday, Jan. 26 from 8:30-10:30 a.m. at the Gulf Coast Business Technology Center at 1636 Popp's Ferry Road in Biloxi.

Ed Covacevich of the Mississippi Contract Procurement Center will cover the following areas:

Invitation for bids (IFB), Request for proposal (RFP), Small purchase procedures, RFQ/oral quotes, Unsolicited proposals, A/E services, Construction acquisitions and service contracts.

The seminar is free, but registration is suggested by calling 863-2933. The program is presented in cooperation with the Mississippi Contract Procurement Center, the Greater Biloxi Economic Development Foundation, the Gulf Coast Business Technology Center, the Coast Chamber and the USM Small Business Development Center.

Five earn real estate licenses

Real estate license examinations were held Jan. 10 in Jackson for those persons desiring to enter the field of real estate sales, rentals and other related real estate activities.

Commissioner Lenny Sawyer Jr. announces the following have been issued licenses by the Mississippi Real Estate Commission:

Brokers: Eileen Chopoton of Bay St. Louis.

Salespersons: Judy Strain of Waveland and Jacqueline Holifield and Belinda Maddux, both of Bay St. Louis, and Michael Ladner of Diamondhead.

Birth defects study

Veterans with children suffering from birth defects are urged to register with the Association of Birth Defect Children (ABDC), if they haven't already done so.

ABDC needs to increase the number of victims on its registry to make it scientifically valid in the eyes of the National Academy of Sciences (NAS).

After testifying during Agent Orange hearings, ABDC director Betty Mekdeci was told she needed a larger pool of victims to prove a link between herbicides and birth defects before any definite proof of association can be claimed.

Mekdeci's group shows strong evidence that certain birth defects are more common in children of Vietnam veterans than in their civilian counterparts.

Mekdeci presented the committee with 1,300 child birth defect cases — 483 from non-veterans and 817 from Vietnam veterans.

Veterans with birth-defect children should send a postcard with their names and addresses to the Association of Birth Defect Children, Inc., 5400 Diplomat Circle, Suite 270, Orlando, FL 32910.
